Why choose UC Davis

UC Davis' Home Health program is nationally ranked among the highest in patient satisfaction, helping patients improve their functional status and keeping patients from preventable hospitalizations. The UC Davis advanced electronic medical record (EMR) allows Home Health clinicians and physicians to exchange up to the minute information, resulting in better patient outcomes. We specialize in combining state-of-the-art medical technology with a personalized touch, recognizing the individual needs and cultural diversity of the patients we serve.

Delivering high-quality, compassionate care

As part of the region's only academic health center, UC Davis Health System's Home Care Services offers patient assessment, case management and a full spectrum of adult, geriatric and pediatric home-health services. The program features a comprehensive and multidisciplinary team of skilled professionals, including nurses, physical, occupational and speech therapists, social services experts and home-health aides.

Qualifying for home health support

Eligible patients must be willing to participate in the plan of care established with their physician and Home Health clinicians. Patients must initially demonstrate a need for skilled care provided by a registered nurse or physical therapist, and must experience a great and taxing effort to leave the home. Patients interested in home care services should first make an appointment with their UC Davis physician, who can help decide if the Home Health program is right for them. For additional information on Home Health eligibility requirements, please call 916-734-2458.
